

Circular economy housing: making the shift – Sydney, 9 May 2024

The build, operation and demolition of Australian homes contribute significantly to Australia's embodied carbon emissions, which will continue to grow as more homes are built. In the face of the climate crisis and the housing affordability crisis, the a shift to circular economy housing is urgently needed and requires multi-directional effort. This conference will explore the findings from the AHURI inquiry, Informing a strategy for circular economy housing in Australia and facilitate a broader discussion about what it will take to decarbonise support Australian housing to become more sustainable through the full lifecycle from construction through to demolition.
